

William J. Qualls electrocuted on job

11-5-1962
William J. Qualls, age 54, long time employee of the Wheatland REA died instantly of electrocution Monday, Nov. 5 ten miles East of Richards Hall in Laramie county. He was working on a power line going to a missile site.

Ed Cox of Wheatland, who was working with Qualls, said they had a 7,200 volt "hot line" tied to a ladder truck. Wm. Qualls, Wheatland REA superintendent, who was on the truck, put off a steel bar establishing a ground for the current.

Cox said he gave Qualls mouth to mouth artificial respiration for 10 minutes without results. He summoned aid from other workers on the job, and continued resuscitation efforts. A Wheatland ambulance was summoned but Mr. Qualls was dead when the vehicle arrived.

Last rites will be held at the Methodist Church Nov. 9 at 2:00 p.m. with Rev. Clifford Polson, Sr. officiating. Masonic services will be held at the graveside in the Wheatland cemetery. The body will lie in state at the Schrader Chapel Thursday and at the Methodist church from 10 a.m. Friday until service time.
